Important Information Regarding the Future of the Gold Coast Public Library

The Gold Coast Public Library Board of Trustees remains in contract negotiations with Halm Industries to acquire 180 Glen Head Road. The property sits between Glen Cove Drive, the American Legion Post 336, the Town of Oyster Bay Community Center and our much-used sports fields. For an acquisition to go forward, residents of the library district registered to vote in a general election will have to approve the deal. A bond referendum (date to be announced) would include the purchase price of the property plus the cost of a new building. After a public input process that helps determine facility features, the architects would then develop plans and estimates to generate an overall total project price which the public must approve.

The Library Director and Board conducted a three-month selection process before naming KG&D Architects of Mt. Kisco, NY, to design a new facility. Before putting pen to paper, the architects will hold a series of design focus groups with Library district residents. At these sessions, interested residents will offer their input on the features they would like in a new building. Once the schedule for these sessions is set, watch for information on how community members who wish to participate can get involved.

The Library Board has also engaged the services of Capital Markets Advisors of Great Neck to provide guidance in how to obtain the most effective and cost-efficient funding should the public approve the project.

GOLD COAST MEMORIES

Golf on Long Island

Long Island's first golf course - the original Shinnecock Hills Golf Club - was built in 1891. Today, Long Island is one of the most popular golf destinations in the world, with over 145 public and private courses, three of them located in the Gold Coast Library district - Engineers Country Club, Glen Head Country Club and North Shore (formerly Glenwood) Country Club.

A new book - Images of America: Long Island Golf by Phil Carlucci - will be published in June, in the heart of golf season. The book contains more than 200 photos of public and private courses, including these two from Gold Coast Library's Local History collection.
